Agenda item 6
Universal periodic review

Report of the Working Group on the Universal Periodic Review*

Sweden

* The annex is being circulated without formal editing, in the language of submission only.

Introduction

1. The Working Group on the Universal Periodic Review, established in accordance with Human Rights Council resolution 5/1, held its thirty-fifth session from 20 to 31 January 2020. The review of Sweden was held at the 10th meeting, on 27 January 2020. The delegation of Sweden was headed by the Minister for Gender Equality, with responsibility for anti-discrimination and anti-segregation, Åsa Lindhagen. At its 16th meeting, held on 30 January 2020, the Working Group adopted the report on Sweden.
2. On 14 January 2020, the Human Rights Council selected the following group of rapporteurs (troika) to facilitate the review of Sweden: Cameroon, Japan and Mexico.
3. In accordance with paragraph 15 of the annex to Human Rights Council resolution 5/1 and paragraph 5 of the annex to Council resolution 16/21, the following documents were issued for the review of Sweden:
 - (a) A national report submitted/written presentation made in accordance with paragraph 15 (a) (A/HRC/WG.6/35/SWE/1);
 - (b) A compilation prepared by the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights (OHCHR) in accordance with paragraph 15 (b) (A/HRC/WG.6/35/SWE/2);
 - (c) A summary prepared by OHCHR in accordance with paragraph 15 (c) (A/HRC/WG.6/35/SWE/3 and A/HRC/WG.6/35/SWE/3/Corr.1).
4. A list of questions prepared in advance by Belgium, Iran (Islamic Republic of), Liechtenstein, Portugal, on behalf of the Group of Friends on national mechanisms for implementation, reporting and follow-up, Slovenia, the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland and the United States of America was transmitted to Sweden through the troika. These questions are available on the website of the universal periodic review.

I. Summary of the proceedings of the review process

A. Presentation by the State under review

5. The head of the delegation stated that the world needed equal and open societies and well-functioning multilateral systems in order to address current challenges. The universal periodic review remained vital for upholding human rights, democracy and the rule of law around the world.
6. By highly valuing the views of civil society organizations, the Government held consultations with such organizations prior to the review. The Government had taken serious steps to fulfil its international human rights obligations since the previous review, and remained vigilant about the remaining challenges. The 2016 national strategy for human rights reaffirmed the Government's goal to ensure full respect of the country's international human rights obligations.
7. The delegation informed the working group about steps taken by the Government to comply with the recommendations calling for the establishment of a national human rights institution in accordance with the principles relating to the status of national institutions for the promotion and protection of human rights (the Paris Principles). A ministry memorandum of 2018 had proposed the establishment of such an institution in 2021.
8. Sweden made progress in ensuring the rights of the child, while some challenges remained, in particular concerning children in vulnerable situations. The Government would continue its efforts to combat all forms of violence against children and provide children in vulnerable situations with adequate support.
9. The delegation informed the working group that as at 1 January 2020, the Convention on the Rights of the Child had acquired the status of national law, entailing a clearer obligation on courts and legal practitioners to consider the rights contained in the Convention in cases concerning children. The potential ratification of the Optional Protocol to the Convention on the Rights of the Child on a communications procedure has raised a number of questions, which must be analysed before the Government would be able to reach a view on the issue.

10. Sweden had strengthened its legislation on anti-discrimination and increased budget allocations for measures to combat discrimination. Figures of 2018 from the Swedish Security Service showed an increase in the expression of xenophobic and radical nationalistic ideas, mainly through social media. The Government had adopted a comprehensive national plan to combat racism, similar forms of hostility and hate crime in 2016, in line with the recommendations from the previous review that were supported by Sweden. In the framework of the national plan, the Government had implemented several measures, including the training of public employees, school staff, police officers and social workers, and initiatives to enhance awareness of children and young people on racism.

11. The Government had appointed a special envoy for intercultural and interfaith dialogue in order to coordinate the Government's participation in international initiatives to address challenges posed by racism and to protect religious minorities. The delegation reaffirmed the Government's commitment to combat all forms of racism.

12. By reaffirming the commitment of Sweden to ensure equal rights and opportunities for lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender and intersex persons, the delegation reported that the Government had been drafting a new law to permit a change of legal gender on the basis of self-determination in order to strengthen the rights of transgender persons.

13. The Swedish Migration Agency had taken measures to strengthen assessment procedures of asylum claims to effectively identify risks of persecutions in countries of origin owing to the applicant's sexual orientation, gender identity or gender expression. The Government has been preparing its first national action plan on lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender and intersex persons.

14. Sweden has had a feminist Government and a feminist foreign policy. Gender mainstreaming with gender-responsive budgeting has served the most important tool for implementing the Government's feminist policy.

15. The Government had introduced reforms in the parental leave scheme, which contributed to an equal distribution of parental allowance between women and men.

16. The Government had adopted a cross-sectoral strategy for preventing and combating men's violence against women and for providing protection and support to women and children victims of violence.

17. The Government has been in the process of consultation with the Sami people concerning the text of a Nordic Sami Convention, the preservation of Sami languages and requests for Truth Commissions. In 2019, the Prime Minister set out the Government's commitment to strengthen the self-determination of indigenous Sami people.

18. The Government had strengthened legislation to support all national minorities and set a task for municipalities and other stakeholders to promote the preservation of languages and cultures of national minorities.

19. The Government's disability policy has had the Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities as a starting point and the Swedish Agency for Participation has had the mission of ensuring that the disability policy would have an impact in society through monitoring, research, advice and awareness-raising measures.

B. Interactive dialogue and responses by the State under review

20. During the interactive dialogue, 117 delegations made statements. Recommendations made during the dialogue are to be found in section II of the present report.

21. Italy welcomed the incorporation of the Convention on the Rights of the Child into domestic legislation.

22. Japan commended efforts to combat racism and hate crime, protect the rights of women and promote gender equality.

23. Jordan noted developments made in the area of human rights.

24. Kenya commended Sweden for supporting the protection of human rights through its financial contributions to other countries and OHCHR.
25. Lebanon commended Sweden for its efforts to respect human rights, including the rights of migrants.
26. Lithuania congratulated Sweden on its feminist foreign policy and the progress achieved in its human rights agenda.
27. Luxembourg congratulated Sweden for the high rate of women in public and political life.
28. Malaysia was concerned about low rates of investigations, prosecutions and convictions of perpetrators of hate speech and hate crime.
29. Maldives welcomed a new strategy for development cooperation to support human rights, democracy-building and the rule of law.
30. Malta welcomed the delegation of Sweden.
31. Mexico welcomed the incorporation of the Convention on the Rights of the Child into national legislation and the ratification of the Domestic Workers Convention, 2011 (No. 189) of the International Labour Organization (ILO).
32. Mongolia noted that Sweden ensured equal access to education and health care for all children and noted the policy on persons with disabilities.
33. Montenegro noted the high rate of women's representation in political and public life. It was concerned about inadequate legislation on anti-discrimination.
34. Mozambique noted efforts made to implement the recommendations from the previous review.
35. Myanmar noted effective measures taken in favour of persons with disabilities.
36. Nepal appreciated the contribution of Sweden to respect for human rights worldwide.
37. The Netherlands encouraged Sweden to ensure that a new national human rights institution would be compliant with the Paris Principles.
38. New Zealand highlighted the importance of protecting the rights of the Sami people.
39. The Niger noted the adoption of a 10-year strategy on human rights in 2016.
40. Nigeria noted measures adopted for combating discrimination, especially against migrants.
41. North Macedonia commended measures taken to combat violence against women and hate crime, and to protect the rights of children.
42. Norway noted steps taken to ensure that the Sami people could exercise their rights.
43. Pakistan appreciated the high rate of women in political life, but was concerned about the inadequate representation of minority women.
44. Panama welcomed the strategy on human rights and the ratification of the ILO Domestic Workers Convention, 2011 (No. 189).
45. Paraguay welcomed incorporation of the Convention on the Rights of the Child into national legislation.
46. Peru thanked Sweden for the official development assistance, focusing on human rights, democracy and the rule of law.
47. The Philippines noted efforts to combat hate crime, but was concerned about the low number of resolved cases.
48. Poland welcomed the establishment of a special envoy for interreligious and intercultural dialogue.
49. Portugal commended the high rate of participation of women in the labour force, and also commended the measures taken to facilitate the conciliation of family and work life.

50. Qatar welcomed the incorporation of the Convention of the Rights of the Child into national legislation.
51. The Republic of Korea appreciated the measures taken to promote gender equality and combat violence against women.
52. The Republic of Moldova noted the implementation of a strategy on human rights and efforts to ensure gender equality.
53. Romania welcomed efforts to establish a national human rights institution, and increase knowledge on racism and hate speech.
54. The Russian Federation thanked Sweden for the report presented.
55. Rwanda noted efforts to combat discrimination and segregation and encouraged Sweden to enhance such efforts.
56. Senegal welcomed the strategy to prevent violence against women and the resources allocated for its implementation.
57. Serbia noted the strategy on human rights and the incorporation of the Convention on the Rights of the Child into domestic legislation.
58. Singapore acknowledged efforts to address the discrimination and marginalization of ethnic and religious minorities.
59. Slovakia noted the incorporation of the Convention on the Rights of the Child into domestic legislation.
60. Slovenia commended Sweden for its provision of support to the international human rights mechanisms.
61. The delegation of Sweden stated that the Constitution provided safeguards for the independence of the judiciary. Regarding concerns expressed about a lack of statutory time limits for pretrial detention, the delegation explained that it was used only when necessary and proportionate. It was noted that the Government had been working on proposals to limit the use of pretrial detention. Additionally, one important aspect was taking the necessary measures to ensure that the relevant authorities take full consideration of the United Nations Standard Minimum Rules for the Treatment of Prisoners.
62. Regarding the fight against racism, the Government had established a committee to consider the introduction of a specific criminal liability for the participation in a racist organization and a ban on such organizations. The Swedish Police Authority established a national contact point for hate crime as well as hate crime units in the three metropolitan police regions. The Government had also taken several measures to fight hate crime on the Internet and to prevent such crimes.
63. Regarding freedom of religion, the Government had increased State support to strengthen security for the premises of religious communities and to enhance security for civil society and schools.
64. The delegation reiterated the Government's commitment to combat violence against women. New legislation concerning sexual offences – based on the principle of consent – had entered into force in 2018, when the new offences of “negligent rape” and “negligent sexual assault” had been introduced.
65. The legislative framework for combating human trafficking had been strengthened recently. Penal provisions on human trafficking had been clarified and broadened in several aspects, and the new offence of “human exploitation” had been introduced.
66. Since 2015, residence permits had been granted to over 260,000 persons in need of international protection and their families.
67. The principle of non-refoulement has been the foundation of the Swedish asylum system. In 2019, a cross-party commission of inquiry was appointed to examine the country's future migration policy and to consider the design of the policy, with the aim of establishing a system that would be sustainable in the long term and a migration policy that would be humane, legally secure and effective.

68. Moreover, over the past five years, over 22,000 stateless persons had been granted Swedish nationality. Against this background, an inquiry on nationality had been appointed. One measure being examined was whether certain children who were born stateless in Sweden could acquire Swedish nationality automatically at birth.
69. The delegation stated that before Sweden could ratify the International Convention for the Protection of All Persons from Enforced Disappearance, a thorough analysis was required. However, Sweden essentially met the requirements set out in the Convention.
70. Solomon Islands commended Sweden for its efforts to fulfil its human rights obligations.
71. Somalia acknowledged the incorporation of the Convention on the Rights of the Child into domestic legislation.
72. South Sudan appreciated efforts to promote and protect human rights worldwide.

107. Bhutan noted with appreciation the establishment of the Swedish Gender Equality Agency.
108. Bosnia and Herzegovina welcomed the country's commitment to protect human rights through cooperation with all stakeholders.
109. Botswana welcomed a national strategy on human rights and the inclusion of human rights education in school curricula.
110. The delegation of Sweden stressed that safeguarding human rights was a cornerstone of Swedish foreign policy. In response to some ongoing threats to democratic principles around the world, the Government had launched the "Drive for Democracy" initiative to provide support in strengthening democracy, human rights and the rule of law. Additionally, Sweden had launched a national campaign to reinforce democracy and its values with an emphasis on 2021, the year in which Swedish democracy would be celebrating its 100th anniversary.
111. In order to strengthen opportunities for the Sami people to influence and participate in decision-making, the Government had drafted and circulated for comments a memorandum on consultation on matters concerning the Sami people and prepared a draft bill on that subject. The Government strengthened the opportunity for stakeholder consultations under the Mineral Act.
112. In 2017, three States, including Sweden, and the three Sami parliaments, concluded negotiations on a Nordic Sami Convention. The draft text was forwarded to the Sami parliaments for their final consideration. Requests for amendments received from the Sami parliaments had been considered by the States although Sweden had not opposed a limited negotiating mandate to enable negotiations to the amendments to the initial draft. The Convention would play an important role in strengthening the rights of the Sami people to preserve their languages, culture and livelihoods. Sweden intended to work towards the ratification of the ILO Indigenous and Tribal Peoples Convention, 1989 (No. 169).

113. Sweden had adopted amendments to the Act on National Minorities and Minority Languages and to a communication entitled “New start for a stronger minority policy” in order to promote the use of minority languages and consultations with minorities at all levels of decision-making. The Government had been planning to adopt two programmes for the preservation of minority languages. The delegation stressed the need to intensify efforts, increase funding and ensure genuinely inclusive consultations with minorities in order to ensure further progress. It also stressed the need to continue efforts to enhance general public knowledge about national minorities.

114. The delegation reaffirmed the country’s commitment to fighting discrimination against Roma. Sweden adopted a long-term strategy for Roma inclusion. The Government had taken steps to enhance the capacity of professionals working on matters related to Roma.

115. The delegation informed the working group about measures taken to improve the situation of persons with disabilities, including the participation of and accessibility for persons with disabilities. Developments in most policy areas had been slow but there had been positive developments in the areas of culture, media, information technology and transport.

116. The delegation stated that the issue of ratification of the International Convention on the Protection of the Rights of All Migrant Workers and Members of Their Families should be discussed and decided at the level of the European Union.
